

Ethics in a Classroom and Student's behaviour

Ethics are standards set for us to recognize our actions as right or wrong. It helps categorize discipline, honesty and integrity in our actions performed during the day. Acting as a guideline to influence behaviour and making the right choice, it is easier for individuals to abide by rules and act responsibly.

It sets standards that are applicable and protects the interests of both learner and tutor.

It has been observed, students claim that they are giving maximum time to studies and fulfilling all the formalities to get marks but they are not getting satisfactory results. They are lagging.

Actually we have forgotten that our actions have major impact on the results of our life. Our attitude towards elders and with all our relations, our honesty/dishonesty in our workplace and life, how we cooperate with others and apply all other moral values have specific impact in our life.

Lets see some important ingredients of success, some key points of ethics and moral values -

1) Honesty

Some students cheats to pass their exams, they use all the wrong and unethical resources to get the good marks and eventually pass with good marks.

Temporarily, it seems to them that they are very smart, they didn't work hard but got marks easily, they nourish a misconception and think that their life will be pass away by this.

But it has been observed that such person fails in his life as he adopts the habit of truancy from study, which leads them to the caves of failures as they're cheating with themselves all along. Face the challenges and stick with your commitment.

2) Hard Work

"Successful people are not gifted, they just work hard then succeed on purpose."

It's a simplest example of life. Just imagine, if you can't even drink a glass of water without any action, how do you think that the success will come in front of your door without any action or work?

Your parents invest their money and time, fulfill your desires and formalities of life. You have enough time to change your life.

3) Be clear and consistent

Students need expectations set early and clearly and don't over complicate things.

4) Respect Others

We show respect by telling the truth, keeping our promises and not listening to and spread rumors.

Don't crush you classmates' spirits. One of the foundation-al values is respect - respecting one another, you tutor and our differences

5) Compassion

"Compassion is an action word with no boundaries".

Being a student, you need to be compassionate about other students and for everyone. Eventually, when the time comes on hardhearted and uncompassionate students, they are alone, and suffer all the miseries and pain by themselves.

6) Character

To have integrity and a set of moral values; it defines who you are and establishes your reputation.

7) Courage

To stand up for your moral values and do the right thing.

8) Commitment

To consistently apply your moral values and standards, not just when it's convenient.
